

Terms of Reference for Observers of the EU EOM to Bolivia 2025

General elections, 17 August 2025

Possible presidential run-off 19 October 2025

Specific Health advisory for La Paz and other high-altitude destination

There is risk of altitude sickness for experts, analysts and observers arriving in El Alto (La Paz) (+4000m) and for those CT members, LTOs and STOs deploying to high-altitude destinations (more specifically El Alto, La Paz, Puerto Acosta, Oruro, Potosi, Villazon at +3000m, the cities of Sucre, Cochabamba Quillacollo and Sacaba at +2.500m, Tarija at +1870m). Altitude Illness can occur to anyone at any time: it depends on personal susceptibility but also on personal fitness and health conditions. All Mission Members, and in particular the ones with pre-existing health conditions such as angina, heart failure, and pulmonary diseases should thoroughly discuss with their doctor prior to deploying and when requesting the Fit-to-work certificate.
