Media registration open for the OSCE Informal Ministerial Meeting on 11 July in Mauerbach, Austria

VIENNA, 22 June 2017 – On 11 July 2017, Federal Minister for Europe, Integration and Foreign Affairs Sebastian Kurz, in his role as Chairperson-in-Office of the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE), invites his colleagues from the 57 OSCE participating States, the President and General Secretary of the OSCE Parliamentary Assembly and the Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs of the United Nations to an informal meeting in Mauerbach. With this, Austria, which holds the OSCE Chairmanship in 2017, demonstrates once again its long-standing role as a place of dialogue.

The meeting, under the motto, “Building Trust through Dialogue and Co-operation”, is taking place in the context of a serious crisis in European security, in which States are confronted with external and internal threats.

In the plenary session, senior representatives of participating States will exchange views on threats to security, as well as on current developments. In addition to the conflicts in the OSCE area, the main topics will include migration, terrorism, human rights, rule of law and democracy.
