 The Other Communist Countries include the following countries : Albania, North Korea, North Vietnam for 1976 and 1977, North Korea, Vietnam for 1978, 1979, 1980 and 1981

NOTES :

(1) For comparative reasons total trade of NATO countries appears on each table (see document AC/127-D/725).

(2) The breakdown, by percentages, of the trade of NATO members of the OECD on the one side and of non-NATO members of the OECD on the other side, appears on Annex III.B, pages 82 and 83.

(3) The percentages have been rounded to one decimal point.

A percentage zero signifies either zero growth or no trade.

ANNEXE D - NOTE COMPLEMENTAIRE

Depuis avril 1980, l'OCDE a modifié la ventilation du commerce des pays membres avec les pays communistes:

Notamment:

- (a) le commerce avec l'Albanie, qui appartenait auparavant à l'ensemble des "autres pays communistes", fait désormais partie d'un nouveau groupe comprenant l'Albanie, Gibraltar, Malte, les Iles Féroé, Chypre et l'Europe n.d.a.;
- (b) le commerce avec le Vietnam, indiqué précédemment pour le Nord-Vietnam, est donné pour l'ensemble du pays;
- (c) le commerce avec les pays du COMECON, qui n'était pas explicité auparavant, est publié maintenant.

En conséquence:

- (a) le commerce des pays de l'OCDE non membres de l'OTAN, avec le "total des pays communistes" ainsi qu'avec les "autres pays communistes", pour les années 1978, 1979, 1980 et 1981 n'est pas strictement comparable à celui de 1977. Ceci concerne les statistiques en valeur absolue et en pourcentage. Si ces différences sont importantes pour les pays repris dans la rubrique "autres pays communistes", elles ne semblent pas significatives pour les statistiques concernant le "total des pays communistes";
- (b) pour l'année 1978, les différences statistiques entre le document AC/127-D/647 et le document antérieur (AC/127-D/626) sont à nouveau mises en évidence dans deux tableaux supplémentaires en pages 84 et 85;
- (c) ces mêmes tableaux explicitent pour les quatre années disponibles (1978, 1979, 1980 et 1981) le commerce des pays de l'OCDE non membres de l'OTAN avec les pays du COMECON.

ANNEX D - ADDITIONAL NOTE

Since April, 1980, the OECD has modified the breakdown of trade of member countries with Communist countries:

Especially:

- (a) trade with Albania, which heretofore has been grouped with "other Communist countries", now forms part of a new group including Albania, Gibraltar, Malta, the Faroe Islands, Cyprus and Europe n.e.s.;
- (b) trade with Vietnam, previously shown as for North Vietnam, is given for the whole country;
- (c) trade with COMECON countries, which has not been shown before, is now published.

Consequently:

- (a) the trade of non-NATO member countries of the OECD with the "total Communist countries" as well as with "other Communist countries" for the years 1978, 1979, 1980 and 1981 is not strictly comparable with 1977. This concerns the statistics in value terms and by percentage. If these differences are important for the countries under the heading "other Communist countries", they do not appear to be significant for the statistics concerning "total Communist countries";
- (b) for 1978, the statistical differences between the document AC/127-D/647 and the precedent document (AC/127-D/626) have been shown again in two supplementary tables on pages 84 and 85;
- (c) these same tables show for the four years available (1978, 1979, 1980 and 1981) the trade of non-NATO member countries of the OECD with the COMECON countries.

Foreign Trade Relations of the USSR with the Third World^{*)}

1. Changing Basic Conditions for Foreign Trade

The continued recession in Western industrialized countries - the most important trade partners of the Third World - has considerably deteriorated the foreign trade situation of the developing countries. This applies particularly to the price development and sales possibilities of raw materials. Besides the resulting lower revenue of the raw material exporting countries, high interest rates and increasingly shorter periods for the repayment of credits as well as the growing foreign indebtedness of the individual countries of the Third World lead to acute shortage in foreign exchange. Import restrictions and growing protectionism are, of necessity, the consequence. Lack of spare parts and of unfinished products as well as the necessary restrictions in capital expenditure programmes impair the economic development of these countries.

If the USSR was presently in a position to effectively assist these countries in solving their foreign trade problems (i.e. to supply them with food products, capital goods, crude oil) and to overcome their financial difficulties, she might in certain countries, besides economic advantages (on a long-term basis) also achieve a political gain. Late in 1981 the foreign currency reserves of the USSR amounted to US$ 8.3 billion. This, as a matter of fact, would provide a certain margin to take advantage of the chances offered to her by the Third World. However, due to the high food imports which were again required in the current year, her financial means, on the other hand, are considerably reduced.

2. The Development of the USSR Foreign Trade with the Third World

2.1 Quantitative Aspects

As distinct from the trade of the USSR with the West, her foreign trade with the countries of the Third World has even spectacularly developed since 1979. The turnover has almost doubled until the end of 1981 (+ 96%) (see table 1 of the annex). This was mainly due to the strong growth in imports by 144%; however, exports, too, increased by 49%. The high increase in imports is to be attributed to the food and feeding stuff purchases of the USSR from Argentina and Brazil. In 1981 39% of the soviet imports from the Third World originated from these two countries, whereas they absorbed only 0,1% of the Soviet exports to developing countries. This special development, it is true, noticeably distorts the overall picture of the foreign trade relations of the Soviet Union with the countries of the Third World, but does not challenge the basic evidence of the massive expansion of the East-South trade. Apart from the trade with Argentina and Brazil, the turnovers with the Third World during the period from 1979 to 1981 increased by 61%; the imports (+75%) grew faster than the exports (+ 50%) (see table 1 of the annex). These figures are noticeably above those for the trade of the USSR with the West (both exports and imports up 37%).

As a consequence of the rapid growth in imports the USSR, in her foreign trade with the Third World, had to accept considerable trade balance deficits during the past two years (1980: 1.4 billion Roubels, 1981 even 2.7 billion Roubels - see table 1 of the annex). When considering only the trade flows liquidated in hard currencies, the situation is even less favourable for the Soviet Union - trade balance deficit in 1980: 1.8 billion Roubels, in 1981: 2.8 billion Roubels. The total amount of the 1981 foreign trade deficit (2.8 billion Roubels), however, is almost identical with the trade balance deficit vis-à-vis Argentina and Brazil for the same year.

This analysis is based on the foreign trade figures which are obtained when summing up the figures for the foreign trade of the USSR with the developing countries listed in the Soviet statistics. In addition hereto the statistics of the USSR show global figures for her foreign trade with the Third World which differ from these aggregated figures. In using these global figures which presumably include the arms sales to the Third World ¹⁾, the 1981 trade balance, too, remained active.

During the first quarter of 1982, as compared with the first quarter of 1981, a certain reversal of the trend became apparent: dropping imports (-10 %), sharp rise in exports (+ 61 %) along with an increasing foreign trade turnover (+ 14 %) (see table 1 of the annex). The foreign trade deficit receded from 790 million Roubels (first quarter of 1981) to 144 million Roubels. Obviously, the sale efforts of the USSR in the Third World are successful. Exports could be considerably increased mainly to Iraq, Iran, Brazil, Angola and Nigeria. This will most

- 1) This theory is supported when correlating the export difference amounts, which cannot be attributed to individual countries, with the sums calculated on another basis for arms purchases of the developing countries. This results in a correlation coefficient of 0,87 for the period from 1975 to 1981.

probably have to be attributed for a large part to barter agreements.

2.2 Structural Aspects

In the geographical structure of the USSR's foreign trade with the developing countries, distinct changes have developed during recent years. Since 1980 the imports from Latin America (grain, soybeans, meat) have considerably increased without being offset even approximately by corresponding exports (see tables 2 and 3 of the annex). The slight decrease in Soviet purchases from this region during the first quarter of 1982 will presumably not generate a turn of the trend.

Much less realized by the public has hitherto been the evolution of South and South East Asia in becoming the most turnover - intense foreign trade region of the USSR. This is due to the expansion of the trade relations with India, by far the most important trade partner of the USSR in this region; but also the large imports from Thailand, Malaysia and the Philippines are significant. The flattening out, apparent in the first quarter of 1982, is due, above all, to the decrease in the exports to India as well as of the imports from Thailand and the Philippines.

The developing countries in the Near/Middle East have been able to regain their traditional position as export sales markets for Soviet capital goods since 1981. Iraq, Iran and Afghanistan are the most important trade partners in this region. The trade balance of the USSR with this region is distinctly favourable.

The trade relations with the Arab countries of North Africa are stable, the trade balance continues to be slightly passive. Whereas the region in 1979 still contributed above average, to the growth of the USSR foreign trade with the Third World, it has fallen back since then (see table 3 of the annex). Egypt and Libya are the most important trade partners in this region.

The developing countries in Africa south of the Sahara, measured by the turnover, are of minor importance as trade partners (see table 2 of the annex). Nigeria, Ethiopia and Angola are increasingly emerging as export markets. The most important supply countries are the Ivory Coast (cocoa, coffee), Guinea (bauxite) and Ethiopia (coffee). The trade balance continues to develop favourably. As before, the foreign trade of the USSR with the Third World is concentrated on a few countries. 50 % of all exports in 1981 went to only three countries (India, Iraq, Iran), over 56 % of the imports also came from only three countries (Argentina, India, Brazil).

The goods structure of the imports from the the Third World essentially diverges from that of the exports to these countries. Exported are mainly capital goods, but also crude oil. The imports mainly include food and feedstuffs as well as other raw materials.

3.3 Foreign Trade and Influence

In the course of increased foreign trade relations a certain institutional, administrative and legal framework is developed (foreign trade organisations, long-term trade agreements, joint standing committees, consulting activity) which can also be utilized as a channel for obtaining information and exerting influence. The economic relations which were taken up become stabilized.

DECLASSIFIED - PUBLICLY DISCLOSED - C-M(2008)0116(INV) - DECLASSIFIED - MISE EN LECTURE PUBLIQUE

Foreign trade can be regarded as one of the instruments which the USSR utilizes to gain influence in individual developing countries and to consolidate such influence. An increase and an extension of the trade relations, in this case, precedes the exertion of influence. The instrument "foreign trade" in this context, however, proves little effective, apart from the fact that it creates advantageous administrative and legal conditions. Thus, for instance, the build-up of trade balance deficits (e.g. with Argentina, Brazil, the Philippines and Thailand) does not safeguard its successful use as an argument in favour of a decrease and compensation of such deficits by increased Soviet exports. In addition hereto the USSR is unable to supply larger quantities of such goods which are needed most urgently by the developing countries: Food and crude oil.

A second aspect is to regard foreign trade as one of the results of taking influence. The intensification of the USSR foreign trade with Angola, Mozambique and Ethiopia are examples for this approach. The (political) influence preceded the intensification of the economic relations. In how far, however, this intensification of trade relations will continue, depends to a large extent on economic factors. The efficiency of the participating national economies, especially their solvency, play a decisive role with regard to the scope of the foreign trade relations.

4. Perspectives of the USSR's Foreign Trade Relations with the Third World

Against the background of her deteriorated foreign exchange situation as well as of the decrease of the Soviet exports in her trade with the West, the USSR has to endeavour to increase her exports to the developing countries, not least in order to increase her foreign exchange revenue. The development during the first quarter of the current year is resulting in initial successes. In view of the high debt service and the decrease in export proceeds due to the recession, however, the foreign exchange situation in many developing countries is extremely tense. The Soviet endeavours to extend exports against foreign exchange payments are thus confined to narrow limits.

If a decisive extension of the East-South trade is to be achieved, it will be necessary - in the event of a continued foreign exchange shortage in the USSR and in view of the indebtedness of the Third World - to have recourse to barter agreements on a larger scale. Even in this event, however, spectacular developments are presumably not to be expected. The quality standard of Soviet export goods which is largely regarded as insufficient by the developing countries, will remain a crucial impasse factor in the foreseeable future.
